UNITED STATES SENATOR  FOR NEVADA

Immigrant Resource Guide

Version 2025

A Message from Senator Catherine Cortez Masto

I come from a family of immigrants, so I know that immigrants make our state stronger. That's why I am working tirelessly to reform our broken immigration system, protect our immigrant families, and make Nevada an even better place to live.

During these uncertain times, it is important that all immigrant families know their rights and have access to the resources they need to navigate our country's immigration system and keep their families healthy and safe.

I hope you take a moment to read through this resource guide, where you will find important information on how to access immigration, medical, and crisis services in Nevada.

I am here to serve you. If you or someone you know is in need of assistance, please write, call, or e-mail any of my offices in Nevada or Washington, D.C.

Sincerely,

Catherine Cortez Masto
U.S. Senator

Becoming a Legal Permanent Resident

Who is Eligible?

Individuals who want to become lawful permanent residents (commonly referred to as “Green Card” holders) through their qualified family member, a job offer or employment, or a special category will generally be classified based on a preference system.

With a few exceptions such as for immediate relatives of a U.S. citizen who are given the highest immigration priority, Congress has set a limited number of visas that can be used each year for each category of immigrants.

In general, to meet the requirements for permanent residence in the United States, you must be eligible for one of the immigrant categories established in the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA).

To learn about the different Green Card categories visit:
www.uscis.gov/greencard/eligibility-categories

THE VISA BULLETIN

The Visa Bulletin is a monthly publication issued by the Department of State that provides information on visa availability for immigrant visa applicants. It outlines the priority dates for each category of immigrant visa, indicating when applicants may proceed with the next steps in the visa application process based on their priority date and visa preference category.

The Visa Bulletin helps individuals track the progress of their visa applications and understand when they may be eligible to apply. For more information on the Visa Bulletin:
<https://travel.state.gov/content/travel/en/legal/visa-law0/visa-bulletin.html>

For more information about consular processing visit: www.uscis.gov/greencard/consular-processing

For more information on the overall process visit: www.uscis.gov/greencard/visa-availability-priority-dates and <https://www.uscis.gov/greencard/adjustment-of-status>

HOW TO APPLY FOR A GREEN CARD

Most people who apply for lawful permanent resident status, known as a Green Card, will need an immigrant petition (Form I-130, Petition for Alien Relative, Form I-140, Immigrant Petition for Alien Worker, Form I-360, Petition for Amerasian, Widow(er), or Special Immigrant, or another petition) filed on their behalf.

A petition determines your immigrant classification or category and what requirements apply to you. Some categories of immigrants may be able to petition for themselves.

If you are living in the United States, you may be able to become a permanent resident through adjustment of status (AOS). Once your immigrant petition is approved and a visa number is available, in order to apply for AOS to become a permanent resident you must:

- Complete the most current Form I-485, Application to Register Permanent Residence or Adjust Status.
- Submit the Filing Fee(s). Include the appropriate filing fee with Form I-485 and biometric services fee (if applicable).
- Submit Evidence. Include all required initial evidence and supporting documentation.
- Sign and File the Form I-485. File the application at the correct filing location according to the form instructions.

If you want to receive an e-Notification, complete Form G-1145, E-Notification of Application/Petition Acceptance and clip it to the first page of your application.

Some immigrant petitions can be filed at the same time as the adjustment application (Form I-485, Application to Register Permanent Residence or Adjust Status), known as “concurrent filing.” Other categories of immigrants will be required to wait until they have an approved petition before they can apply for adjustment of status or an immigrant visa.

For more information on Concurrent Filing, visit:

www.uscis.gov/greencard/concurrent-filing-form-i-485.

If you are living outside the United States or are not eligible to file for AOS, you can become a permanent resident through consular processing. Consular processing is when USCIS works with the State Department to issue a visa on an approved immigrant petition when a visa is available.

Becoming a U.S. Citizen

Eligibility for Citizenship

The following describes the most common path to U.S. citizenship, which allows a green card holder (permanent resident) of at least 5 years to apply for naturalization.

Before applying for naturalization please keep in mind that if you have a parent who was a U.S. citizen, either by birth or naturalization, before you turned 18 years old, you may have a claim to citizenship. These are general guidelines that do not apply to every applicant.

For more information on these requirements, please visit:
www.uscis.gov/citizenship.

OTHER PATHS TO CITIZENSHIP

- You have been a permanent resident for 3 years or more and meet all eligibility requirements to file as a spouse of a U.S. citizen.
- You have qualifying service in the U.S. armed forces and meet all other eligibility requirements.

Eligibility Requirements

If you have had a green card for at least 5 years, you must meet the following requirements to apply for naturalization:

Be 18 or older at the time of filing Form N-400, Application for Naturalization.

Have continuous residence in the United States as a green card holder for at least 5 years immediately preceding the date of filing the application.

Be physically present in the United States for at least 30 months out of the 5 years immediately preceding the date of filing the application.

Reside continuously within the United States from the date of application for naturalization up to the time of naturalization.

Have lived within the state, or USCIS district with jurisdiction over the applicant's place of residence, at least 3 months prior to the application filing date

Students may apply for naturalization either where they go to school or where their family lives (if they are still financially dependent on their parents).

A woman with long dark hair and glasses is looking down at a document. A man with curly hair is sitting next to her, also looking at a document. They are in a classroom or office setting with other people blurred in the background.

The English and Civics Test

As part of your application to become a citizen, a USCIS Officer will conduct an interview that will test your ability to read, write, and speak English and your knowledge of U.S. history and government (civics).

Many times, the reason applicants fail the naturalization test is that they cannot answer the interview questions in English. To find English and/or citizenship classes where you live, contact your local community college or adult education program.

You should be prepared for the English portion of your naturalization test when you submit your application.

Information on the test and study materials are available at:
www.uscis.gov/citizenshiptest

TEST EXEMPTIONS AND WAIVERS

You may not need to take the English and civics portions of the naturalization test if you have a medical disability that prevents you from demonstrating knowledge of English or civics. To apply for this exemption, your doctor must complete Form N-648, Medical Certification for Disability Exceptions. The best time to submit this form is with your Form N-400, Application for Naturalization.

For information on how to fill out Form N-648, your doctor should visit: www.uscis.gov/forms.

Some people who apply for naturalization may not have to meet the English requirement because of their age and the length of time they have lived in the United States as a permanent resident.

You are exempt from the English language requirement, but are still required to take the civics test if you are:

Age 50 or older at the time of filing for naturalization and have lived as a permanent resident (green card holder) in the United States for 20 years.

Commonly referred to as the "50/20" exception

OR

Age 55 or older at the time of filing for naturalization and have lived as a permanent resident in the United States for 15 years.

Commonly referred to as the "55/15" exception

Note, even if you qualify for the "50/20" or "55/15" English language exceptions listed above, you must still take the civics test.

- You will be permitted to take the civics test in your native language.
- If you take the test in your native language, you must bring an interpreter with you to your interview.
- Your interpreter must be fluent in both English and your native language.
- If you are age 65 or older and have been a permanent resident for at least 20 years at the time of filing for naturalization, you will be given special consideration regarding the civics requirement.

A Few Things to Remember

- Have you ever been married, divorced, widowed, or had your name legally changed?

If yes, you will need a copy of your marriage certificate, your divorce or annulment decree, or the death certificate of your former spouse. If you changed your name through a court, you will need a copy of the court decree that legally changed your name. In addition, if your current spouse was married before, you will need evidence of the termination of your spouse's prior marriage(s). Failing to show proof of your current marital status or legal name may delay your case.

- Have you EVER been arrested, detained, or cited by the police or any other law enforcement officer?

If yes, you will need documents that show the court disposition of the case in your interview. These documents show the final outcome of the case and are required for all arrests and detentions, including expunged records and plea bargains. If you were put on probation, you will need evidence that you completed your probation. Failing to provide original or certified copies of court disposition documents could delay or result in a denial of your case. Please note that uncertified photocopies are not acceptable.

- Have you traveled outside the United States since becoming a permanent resident?

If yes, you will need to show all foreign travel during the last five years as a permanent resident. Even if you have not traveled outside the United States since becoming a permanent resident, you should bring all of your valid and expired passports and any travel documents issued by USCIS to your naturalization interview. If you do not bring your passport(s) and other documents to your interview, your case could be delayed.

This guide attempts to simplify the naturalization eligibility requirements and list of documents that can be asked for during the naturalization interview. It references the most commonly used documents, but is not an all-inclusive list.

For additional information on applying for naturalization, please refer to Form N-400, available at: www.uscis.gov/n-400

➤ Are you a man between the ages of 18 and 26?

If you are a man between the ages of 18 and 26, you must register for the Selective Service and provide proof of your registration to USCIS. If you are 26 or older but under the age of 31, you must provide proof that you registered with the Selective Service when you were required to do so.

If you were required to register and did not, you must bring to your interview both a written statement explaining why you did not register and a letter from the Selective Service System indicating your status.

For more information about Selective Service registration or how to get proof that you registered, visit:

www.sss.gov or call 1-888-655-1825.

➤ Have you reported your income on your income tax forms?

Your tax returns are very important proof that you are eligible for naturalization. On the day of your interview, bring certified tax returns for the last 5 years (3 years if you are married to a U.S. citizen).

Certified tax transcripts may be ordered by using Internal Revenue Service (IRS) Form 4506-T available at:

www.irs.gov or by calling 1-800-829-1040.

Note, the information in the Becoming a Permanent Resident and Becoming a U.S. Citizen sections of the Immigrant Resource Guide was provided by U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS). Helping My Relative become a U.S. Permanent Resident

As a citizen of the United States, you may help a relative become a lawful permanent resident of the United States. To do so, you need to sponsor your relative and be able to prove that you have enough income or assets to support your relative(s) when they come to the United States.

You begin the process by filing Form I-130, Petition for Alien Relative. This form establishes the family relationship that exists between you and your relative. Specific filing instructions are available at:

www.uscis.gov.

WHAT ABOUT MY RELATIVE'S FAMILY?

In most cases, your relative's spouse and unmarried children under 21 years of age can join him or her by also applying for an immigrant visa. (If the family member is already in the United States, he or she may be able to file a Form I-485 application to adjust status based on the relative's approved visa petition.)

As a U.S. citizen, you must file a separate petition for each one of your direct relatives, including your own children.

Which relatives may I petition for?

Are you a U.S. Citizen?

YES

A U.S. Citizen can file a petition for the following relatives:

- Husband or wife
- Children, married or unmarried

NO

You may not successfully petition for relatives.

See page [X] for details about citizenship

Are you 21+ years old?

YES

A U.S. Citizen who is 21 years or older may also petition for the following relatives:

- Parents
- Brothers or sisters

NO

If you're a U.S. citizen who is 18+ you can still file a petition for the following relatives:

- Husband or wife
- Children, married or unmarried

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

➤ After I file, how long will my petition take?

The law gives special consideration to immediate relatives of U.S. citizens, which includes a U.S. citizen's spouse, unmarried children under 21 years of age, and parents.

➤ There is no waiting list to process these relatives.

➤ The U.S. Department of State will invite them to apply for an immigrant visa as soon as your I-130 petition is approved.

➤ If your petition was approved and your relatives are in the United States (and they meet certain other requirements), they may be able to file with USCIS to adjust to permanent resident status.

For other relatives, the combination of high demand and the limits set by law on how many people can immigrate annually means your relative may have to wait several years while petitions that were filed before theirs are processed. When your relative reaches the front of the line, the U.S. Department of State contacts your relative and invites him or her to apply for an immigrant visa. Current wait times for visa categories are available under "Visa Bulletins" online at: www.travel.state.gov/visas ➤ Can my relative wait in the United States?

No. If your relative is outside the U.S., filing an I-130 does not allow your relative to live or work in the United States. An I-130 petition only establishes your relationship with your relative. Your relative should wait outside the United States to immigrate legally. If your spouse, unmarried child under 21 years, or parent is already in the United States after having entered legally, they can apply to adjust their status to permanent resident when you file their I-130 petition.

➤ Does filing a relative petition commit me to anything?

Yes. Under the law, each person who immigrates based on a relative's petition must have a financial sponsor. If you choose to sponsor your relative's immigration by filing a relative petition (I-130), when your relative immigrates, you must agree to be his or her financial sponsor by filing Form I-864, Affidavit of Support. If you do not meet the financial qualifications, other individuals will need to make this commitment. For more information, visit uscis.gov.

➤ How long will it take USCIS to process my application?

USCIS posts current processing times on their website, which is the best way to monitor progress of your petition:

egov.uscis.gov/processing-times

➤ Where can I check on the status of my case?

USCIS posts the current status of your application on their website, which is the best way to monitor the status of your case:

egov.uscis.gov

FILING A RELATIVE PETITION

There are two basic ways to legally assist your relatives to immigrate into the United States. Do your relatives live:

In the United States?

If your relatives are already in the United States and entered legally, then they may be able to file an I-485 application to adjust their status to lawful permanent resident at the same time as you file the I-130 relative petition. Petitions filed at the same time with permanent residence applications (I-485) must be filed at a location that is different from where you would file an I-130 petition by itself. Read the instructions for the two addresses for concurrent filings at uscis.gov.

OR

In Another Country (Not the U.S.)?

If your relatives live in another country, you will file an I-130 petition with USCIS. Form I-130 can be filed with a USCIS Lockbox based on the petitioner's place of residence. You should check USCIS's website for any updates on instructions or fees. Make sure your petition is complete, signed, and submitted with correct fees. You will need to submit evidence of your U.S. citizenship, and evidence proving your relationship to each person for whom you are filing a petition.

U.S. IMMIGRATION AND CUSTOMS ENFORCEMENT

If you or someone you know is detained by I.C.E., you can access the I.C.E. Portal at www.ice.gov/check-in for resources like appointment management, assistance finding a lawyer, and more.

U-NONIMMIGRANT STATUS

The U-nonimmigrant status, commonly known as the U visa, is designated to individuals who have been victims of specific crimes and have endured mental or physical abuse. These individuals must also be cooperative with law enforcement or government officials in the investigation or prosecution of criminal activities.

Congress created the U-nonimmigrant visa with the passage of the Victims of Trafficking and Violence Protection Act which was intended to investigate and prosecute cases of domestic violence, sexual assault, trafficking of noncitizens and other crimes, while also protecting victims of crime who have suffered substantial mental or physical abuse due to the crime and are willing to help law enforcement authorities.

U-nonimmigrant eligibility includes:

- You are the victim of a qualifying criminal activity.
- You have suffered substantial physical or mental abuse as a result of having been a victim of criminal activity.
- You have information about the criminal activity.
- You were helpful, are helpful, or likely to be helpful to law enforcement in the investigation or prosecution of the crime.

You can find more information on the U-nonimmigrant visa here:

www.uscis.gov/humanitarian/victims-of-criminal-activity-u-nonimmigrant-status

T-NONIMMIGRANT STATUS

The T-nonimmigrant status is a temporary immigration benefit that allows specific victims of severe human trafficking to stay in the United States for an initial period of up to 4 years, provided they cooperated with the law enforcement in the detection, investigation, or prosecution of human trafficking or meet exemption criteria.

Certain eligible family members of trafficking victims can also apply for T-nonimmigrant status. T-nonimmigrants have access to employment authorization, as well as select federal and state benefits and services. Those who meet the requirements may have the opportunity to adjust their status and obtain lawful permanent residency. T-nonimmigrant status eligibility includes:

- Are or were a victim of a severe form of human trafficking in persons as defined above.
- Are physically present in the United States, American Samoa, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, or at a port of entry due to human trafficking.
- Have complied with any reasonable request from a law enforcement agency for assistance in the investigation or prosecution of human trafficking.
- Show that you would suffer extreme hardship involving unusual and severe harm if you were removed from the United States
- Are admissible to the United States.

You can find more information on the T-nonimmigrant visa here:

www.uscis.gov/humanitarian/victims-of-human-trafficking-t-nonimmigrant-status

PUBLIC CHARGE RULE

The public charge rule is a U.S. immigration policy that helps determine whether someone applying for a green card or visa may be dependent on government benefits in the future. Under this rule, immigration officials consider an applicant's use of certain public benefits when deciding whether to grant their application. For more information on the public charge rule and the services that fall under that category please visit the following website:

www.uscis.gov/green-card/green-card-processes-and-procedures/public-charge/public-charge-resources
